

PG72325

■ Martin Johnson participating in the Speak Out program.

Fostering talent

SOME of Logan's more artistically talented youth now have their work adorning the walls of the Logan Hyperdome Library.

From now until July 29, the library will host Shelving Unit, an exhibition of artworks by trainees from the Logan SpeakOut program.

The eight works, loosely themed around life and food, range from pop-art digital prints to sculpture and were created by multimedia design trainees aged between 18 and 21.

SpeakOut is a free, accredited training program aimed at giving young people from disadvantaged backgrounds a foot in the door of the visual design industry. An exhibition launch will be held today at the library meeting room from 2pm to 4pm.